Experts estimate that in the American workforce as a whole, workers will need 70 to 90 percent of their pre-retirement income to maintain their current standard of living when they stop working. Lower income earners may need more than 90 percent. Among workers 25-64 years of age, a little more than half are participants in an employer-sponsored retirement plan.

By starting a retirement savings plan, you will help your employees save for the future, and you will help secure your own retirement. Offering a retirement plan may also help you attract and retain better qualified employees. Tax advantages have made it more appealing than ever to establish and contribute to a retirement plan. These tax advantages may include the following, depending on the type of retirement plan selected:

- Employer contributions are deductible from the employer's income;
- Employee contributions (other than Roth contributions) are not taxed until distributed to the employee; and
- Money in the plan grows tax-free.
